Julio's is the home of some interesting and unique menu items, from the ginacotti to the steak in a pouch. For those of you not familiar with a ginacotti, first, I'm sorry and I encourage you to fix that problem. Second, a ginacotti is a "special mixture of cheese and sauce in a dough pocket", then deep-fried. So, basically picture a stromboli, delicious all by itself, then deep-fry it. Yeah, it's as awesome as it sounds. Julio's is a neighborhood landmark that is always hopping, even during lunch hours. We stopped in on a Friday evening, and not only was the dining room packed, but you would not believe the amount of take-out orders waiting to be picked up.

I prefer my ginacotti with sausage and a side of sauce. The steak or pepperoni is also wonderful.
